

#6 The Wolf and Her Young

A mother wolf was instructing her young by the side of a stream. "This is how to use the rocks to step across without fear of being carried away," she exhorted as she carefully chose her way and looked back at the pups. "But mother," cried one young pup, "father never took such care." The she-wolf turned slowly and deliberately, "What your father did and what you decide are two different things."
