

Confession

These are fables with lessons. They were written to me, for me. I cannot live up to the maxims; but I can wish them with all my heart. Why do I feel justified in publishing them - because I am good at seeing the next steps humankind needs to take in order to survive. I believe this is urgent.

This is a huge moment in history! It is the time for humankind to step up to the next level of fun. Real fun. Some would say joy. Aesop, Buddha, Confucius, Socrates, Plato, Lao Tzu, Aristotle and Homer (to name a few greats who lived before Christ) recorded stories that were most probably heard from the spiritual world. Some think that they were written because humankind was falling asleep. Some say that people were losing the ability to see the spiritual world.

- Now is the time to wake up. -

These fables are wake-up calls for this next version of humankind ... you and me. They cross the boundary between conflict resolution and joyful, free play. I hope they are just in time for you, like me ... to live happily ever after.

Note to Parents, Teachers, and Counselors

A simple way to use these fables might be ...

1. take a minute or two to read one yourself
2. pause to let your intuition describe a use of it
3. relate it to your charge - in his or her terms

I hope - however you use them - you have fun