

#136 One Man

A young man was preparing for the sacred celebration. It was the eve of the holiday and he was late in making homemade gifts for his immediate family. He felt a little bad for being behind schedule, but he forgave himself. While he worked into the night, his thoughts were filled with his friends. This is where he spent his time and energy. He cared about their lives, their troubles, and their joys. His life was intricately bound with oh-so many others. Then the morning came. Here was a feast of heightened feelings as the family gathered for ritual and heartfelt gift giving. The young man's father was receiving a gift no one could see. In a moment of reflection, his father received both a lesson for life, as well as, a gift in his heart. In a vision, he saw his son as a teacher - a living example of AN INCLUSION THAT IS BOUNDLESS AND CONTAGIOUS. Though there was not an outer exchange, the father carried this gift for a lifetime.
