

Bickart's Just-in-Time Fables

Volume 3

(First Edition)

John Bickart, Ph.D.

Cover art and Illustrations by Wendy Bickart

Red Shirt Interactive Group
Asheville, NC

Copyright © 2020 John Bickart. Some rights reserved.

This book may be shared for non-commercial reasons. This means that it may be copied as a whole or in part and shared in print or any electronic media as long as it is not sold or used to carry advertising. If copied, the author requests attribution.

1st edition, October 2020

Printed in the United States of America

www.bickart.org

Acknowledgements

Wendy senses blind spots when I do not. She can empty herself and give everything to what is in front of her. She meets me at every turn and puts a new spring in my step. If not for her, I don't really know which way I would be facing. Aesop taught me to look for the moral to the story as Anderson taught me that the moral to at least one story is that whatever the old man does is always right. Tzu taught me to return to the path, and Socrates and Plato taught me that learning is remembering. Homer taught me the simile, and Aristotle taught me to see the world. Hafiz and Rumi taught me to laugh. Confucius taught me the golden rule, and Buddha taught me that whatever I think is the one answer, it is not this.

With all of this, you would think I'm ready. Nevertheless, the spiritual world within everything and everyone around me keeps reminding me to have fun. I think they are saying that you are never done; and somehow, that's good.